Traditional Delivery System*
Herbal Ghee products are a time-honored category of dietary supplements, passed down over generations, which allow both water and fat-soluble constituents from the herbs to infuse within the ghee. This helps with the bioavailability of these active constituents deep into bodily tissues. Charaka Samhita, an ancient Ayurvedic text written around 800 BC, describes this concept as “Yogavahi”.

Alcohol-Free
Herbal ghee is a perfect choice for those who want to avoid alcohol or glycerine based dietary supplements.

Trending
Pure Indian Foods Brahmi Ghee was featured in 2019 SPINS Trend Predictions, saying, “A growing number of consumers have already begun to establish new habits (often called sleep hygiene) and to seek out new products to help them relax, unwind, and get a good night’s rest. In 2019, SPINS expects this particular health focus will become more prominent, answered by innovative ingredient combinations and new delivery methods coming to market,” once of which is “a dose of cultured, grass-fed, organic, herbal Brahmi Ghee from Pure Indian Foods that contains Bacopa monnieri for enhancing both memory and sleep.”

Ghee: The Best Fat

When ghee is processed with herbs, it does not lose its own qualities while imbuing the attributes of the herbs added to it. Among all oils and fats, only ghee has this unique quality, whereas other oils and fats give up their own qualities. This is known as “Samskar Anuvartan” in Charaka Samhita.
